Summer Safety

Stay Informed. Stay Safe.

Many City of Phoenix employees work together in keeping the community safe during the Summer heat. It's equally important to make sure our own team stays safe, too.

Employees are encouraged to take the Heat Relief Services Promotion Training in PHXYou to learn about the City's heat relief efforts, heat stroke vs. heat exhaustion, as well as the differences between a hydration station and a cooling and respite center. Employees can use course code CMO107-ONL-Heat Relief Services Promotion.

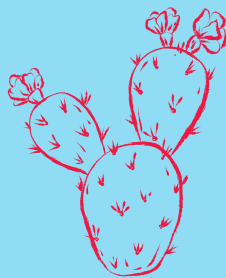

Protect Your Own Health

Stay Hydrated: Drink water and electrolyte drinks throughout the day.

If you feel thirsty, you may already be dehydrated.

Rest: If outdoors for an extended period of time, take regular breaks and cool down indoors or in shaded areas protected from direct sunlight.

Listen to your body: Common symptoms of heat stress include headaches, excessive sweating, thirst, nausea and dizziness. If you experience any symptoms, take action to cool, hydrate, rest, and if necessary, seek medical care. If you are at work, communicate with your supervisor right away.

Additional information regarding heat safety for employees working outdoors can be found in your department's Heat Illness and Injury Prevention Plan or by contacting your department's safety representative.

Film Discussion: Intersexion

Too frequently the response to mental health concerns in the workplace is confusion, fear, judgment, avoidance, and out-right rejection. This leads to a worsening of symptoms and a deterioration of performance.
